

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An image shooting camera is provided with a silver salt picture shooting section, a video signal recording section, an information provider, an information recording section and an index data recording section. The provider outputs an individual identification number and a frame number of a silver salt photosensitive medium used as a recording medium of the silver salt picture shooting section. The numbers outputted from the provider are recorded by the information recording section. The index data recording section records index data including the numbers through the video signal recording section.

008666653.061896